

Lansinoh™ for Breastfeeding Mothers

What is Lansinoh?

Quite simply, Lansinoh is:

LAN—lanolin

SIN—Latin for “without”

OH—chemical symbol for alcohol

Developed especially for breastfeeding mothers, Lansinoh is an ultra-pure, medical-grade lanolin. Refined by a patented process to remove environmental impurities (including pesticide residues) and allergic components (free of lanolin alcohols and detergent residues). Lansinoh is completely safe for use for those who have a sensitivity to wool or other refinements of lanolin. So pure and safe, Lansinoh does not have to be removed before breastfeeding.

Lansinoh is the only topical that has been clinically proven in hospital trials to accelerate the healing process of breastfeeding mothers with sore, cracked nipples. It is the only topical cream endorsed by the La Lecha League International. Works great on minor burns, cuts, and abrasions too.
